

fishbowl one - fishl (“fisheye”)

an assortment of 2010s nostalgia, games, STEM, memes, and crossovers of all of the above by a chronically online academic written by: fish

target audience: me + the two people i talked to on the qb discord

special thanks: coby, jesse, nate + the kerr lab for playtesting, and puzzle jonah for feedback on the last bonus

20 tossups so questionable they will be referred to as “tosstdowns”

Tosstdown 1

The two main NPCs in this game are a blue-skinned chef with bright pink eyes and a green-skinned schoolteacher with yellow glasses. Shamrocks, hearts, smiley faces, and gumdrops are recurring symbols in this game, and are used to denote the stages of one part of this game that uses a grid of tiles. That part of this game includes wildcard Joker tiles and Sneak Peek Tokens. A part of this game that I am very bad at assesses the player’s ability to efficiently complete orders in parallel, and involves moving a conveyor belt back and forth to create a certain (*) food. A pair of blue eyeballs with eyelashes is used as the app icon for this game, and also appear on top of a building where players deduce the features and clothing of a hidden character. The other two buildings in this game contain the memory-matching and cake-making game. For ten points, name this game first included with Windows Vista in 2007 whose name is often misspelled with the similar-sounding “purple”.
ANSWER: Purple Place

Tosstdown 2

A painting displayed at this location depicts a woman pulling thread from a spindle and another woman working at a spinning wheel while two rugs hang behind them; that painting is hung over the sign for restrooms at this location. A design for merchandise for this location uses parts of a 2022 painting by Wopomos without permission; that painting features a blue-haired girl wearing a yellow top and a blue skirt standing in front of this location. The wall of the previously (*) narrow entrance to this location was broken down to connect to a sister store that opened at the start of Ramadan in April 2022. This establishment gives either a free cup of hot tea or a bottle of water to customers who pay with cash. This establishment’s signature dish often consists of lamb, feta cheese, and tzatziki sauce topped over fries. For ten points, name this restaurant on the Ave known for its late closing hours and iconic Mediterranean food.
ANSWER: Aladdin’s Gyro-Cery & Deli

Tosstdown 3

In the official short film based on this game, a character explains how her last name, Robinsky, is inconsistently spelled. A love note in this game reads “YOU ARE HOT LIKE FIRE / OBJECT OF DESIRE / WRAP MY HEART IN WIRE”, which can be gifted to a depressed character to obtain one of seven tokens. A cipher in this game that is decoded by a black piece of paper with holes reveals two names, and is given to the player by a green-hooded messenger. One friendly recurring character in this game repeatedly attempts to (*) smuggle drugs and claims to be from “Cobrastan”; that character is Jorji. The player of this game is issued citations for failing to identify discrepancies in documents like work passes and passports, which are approved or denied via stamp. For ten points, name this dystopian simulation game created by Lucas Pope, where the player works as an immigration inspector for an Arstotzka border checkpoint.

ANSWER: Papers, Please

Tossdown 4

The number 617 (“six hundred and seventeen”) repeatedly appears in lyrics and music videos by this artist. The accompanying illustration for one song by this artist was redrawn after the original was criticized for being too similar to the flag of Japan. A fanmade animation for one of this artist’s most notable songs was created by sowiti (“so-wee-tee”), and includes a sequence of six historical paintings that accompany the singer counting to six in different languages. Characters from songs by this artist include a girl who attempts to bring her friend’s corpse back to life by giving him “plastic eyes and nylon hair” and a wolf who loses an (*) arm from a closing portal. A song on this artist’s first album, Mag Mell, contains a song named after the standard acceleration of gravity, “Nine Point Eight”. For ten points, name this indie band featured in Limbus Company and Deemo whose songs include “Ga1ahad (“Galahad”) and Scientific Witchery” and “world.execute(me);” (“world execute me”).

ANSWER: Mili (the song with controversial illustration is “Birthday Kid”)

Tossdown 5

After being criticized for selling Mundane Bunz NFTs in 2021, this person responded that avocados are also bad for the environment, accusing avocado toast consumers of having the blood of butterfly scientists on their hands. This person, who is actually a character played by comedian Tim Savage, commonly wears a purple and green cap. During the Covid pandemic, this person dropped the iconic line “HELL YEA I GOT A PHD / PRETTY HUGE DICK” under a post where he explained the effectiveness of wearing a mask by comparing it to (*) sharting in your face with and without underwear. This person’s pronouns are he/him and his adjectives are “NOISY AN CHAOTIC”. This person doesn’t want his son kissing boys not because he’s homophobic, but because the only thing he wants his son to use his mouth for right now are Burger King pancakes. For ten points, name this confused man who often finds himself in unexpected situations, such as getting a tattoo of his neck instead of a neck tattoo and ending up in India instead of Indiana.

ANSWER: Skweezy Jibbs

Tossdown 6

In this series, a rescue attempt fails because a character mistakes vitamin supplements for tranquilizer darts. A character in this series initially misinterprets the prophecy “a son will rise again / get to know the son well”, but realizes its correct meaning upon seeing a prince emerge from a crash site after saving his people. A recurring bird-riding assassin in this series is revealed to be storing memory cubes underneath the airship supply station (*) Algos Island. Four characters in this series are tricked into crossing a field of hexagon tiles underneath Cielis so that Max Griffin can steal the Mother Stone. After the protagonist of this series chooses the correct Gadoba fruit to heal her mother, the pursuing elf Luger loses control of his stone and nearly kills her, Leon, and Miskit, but they are saved by a giant walking mechanical house. For ten points, name this 2008 fantasy graphic novel series by Kazu Kibuishi completed in February 2024 that follows Emily’s journey as a Stonekeeper after finding the titular magical necklace.

ANSWER: Amulet

(Author’s note: This tossup was personally approved of and signed by Kazu Kibuishi at the Waverider event at UW! attach image here)

Tossdown 7

Note to players: Description acceptable. (This is a personal choice because I think people disproportionately know what these are without knowing the proper title.)

According to a blog post about the production of one of these videos, its original script included “the first half of Predator, then all of Road House, then the rest of Predator”. That one of these videos takes place inside of a refrigerator and its final script consisted entirely of random improvised lines. The code 1111 is used to unlock a door in one of these videos, but another character busts it down before it can be opened normally. The Jarate (rhymes with “karate”) originates from one of these videos where the protagonist waits to take a shot. Shortly before he is (*) backstabbed, a character in one of these videos mistakes the blood on a character’s dead body with them turning red. That video also features the iconic “What are you, president of his fanclub?” “No, that would be your mother” exchange. The decapitated head of the Spy is seen inside a fridge in one of these videos where the Medic carries out a heart transplant that allows the Heavy to use Übercharge. For ten points, name these animated shorts introducing the nine playable classes of a Valve multiplayer game.

ANSWER: Meet the Team [accept descriptions that mention introducing or meeting TF2 or Team Fortress 2 characters or mercenaries or similar; antiprompt on specific ones mentioned which are Meet the [Sniper, Spy, Medic, Sandwich]]

Tossdown 8

A Vocaloid song with this name in the title involves Len crossdressing as a model to compete against Miku in a fashion contest. This is the name of an LHC experiment that primarily uses lead-ion collisions to study quark-gluon plasma. This is the name of the kaiju brain that Newt drifts with in Pacific Rim: Uprising, a movie that I apologize for mentioning in this packet. In Detroit: Become Human, Audrey Boustani portrays an YK500 model android with this name. A creepypasta about a serial killer in Japan whose calling card was a playing card with this name on it inspired a popular horror (*) Vocaloid song with this name in the title. This is the name of an hypothetical person used in scenarios for special relativity and cryptography, where she is often paired with Bob. This is the first name of the author of Loveless and The Color Purple. For ten points, name this character who meets the Queen of Hearts and the Cheshire Cat while in Wonderland.

ANSWER: Alice [accept Alice in N.Y., ALICE experiment or collaboration, the Alice Killings or Murders, Alice of Human Sacrifice, Alice Wake, or Alice Oseman]

Tossdown 9

One speedrunning category for this series is called “blue juice %”. A character becomes trapped after trying to extract the marble from a ramune (“ra-moo-neh”) bottle in an official animated short for this series. A final boss from one game in this series attacks with fire, water, electricity, and poisonous gas using the four items attached to its body. In that same game in this series, one character’s in-game encyclopedia notes only talk about the best way to cook each organism. A video of a character from this series (*) twerking was used in a Times Square billboard takeover used by fans to promote the most recent release in this series. Arachnorbs (“uh-RACK-norbz”) are recurring mini-bosses in this series, including one that is somehow equipped with a machine gun, the Man-at-Legs. Feeding nectar to the title creatures of this series matures the leaf on their heads to bud and flower stages. For ten points, name this Nintendo game series that recently received a highly anticipated fourth installment and is titled for the small creatures thrown by Captain Olimar.

ANSWER: Pikmin (sorry I did not want to spoil Pikmin 4 so there are no content clues from it)

Tossdown 10

The song “One Way Or Another” by Blondie accompanies a scene in this film where a character cuts up a tank top. One character in this film performs a rap with the line “the G’s silent when I sneak through your door” in reference to his last name. Two characters in this film are watching Friday the 13th Part 2 when they are jumpscared by a third character entering, and in the following scene, one of them uses a sword to emphasize three bullet points on a chalkboard. One character in this film gives a speech criticizing (*) Julius Caesar where she yells “we should totally just STAB CAESAR!” during her descent into madness that begins after she does not receive candy grams. My IB math teacher once showed us a scene from this film where the protagonist finds that the limit does not exist. After the protagonist of this film tricks another character into eating Kalteen bars that cause her to gain weight, she retaliates by distributing copies of the Burn Book around the school. For ten points, name this totally fetch 2004 teen comedy film that follows Cady (“Katie”) Heron’s revenge on Regina George and the Plastics.

ANSWER: Mean Girls (2004)

Tossdown 11

Strata-cut is one form of this technique that involves slicing thin sheets off the end of a long block. A scanning tunnelling microscope was used to accomplish this technique in A Boy and His Atom. In a video featuring this technique, a man makes a sandwich after his keyboard stops working as he is typing “Please send me more money”. That video was created by a Japanese YouTuber who often uses this technique to showcase the process of his woodworking projects like a tissue box and a milk crate; that YouTuber is (*) omozoc.

The shortest film ever to be nominated for an Oscar is Fresh Guacamole, which features this technique. Shaun The Sheep and its parent franchise Wallace and Gromit are both created using this technique, which LAIKA Studios specializes in. This technique is often used to create films with LEGOs and soft clay. For ten points, name this technique that was notably used to produce Coraline and involves making small adjustments to objects between photographing individual frames to create an animation.

ANSWER: stop-motion animation

Tossdown 12

Opening shots from a music video by this group include a woman walking along a double yellow line and a flickering yellow LED display. In a solo song by the founder of this group, the singer reminisces on old photographs of herself while in a dressing room and sings about being “stuck in a place between the space of heart and mind”. The long claws worn by one member of this group were focused on a little too much in a music video for a song whose chorus starts with the line “time to roll the dice, you know I’m the type”. This group’s most recent single featured a bridge sung in (*) Mandarin by guest member Seraphine. The beginning of “GIANTS” by True Damage samples a rap from a song by this group. In its original music video, that rap takes place in a dark subway car with glowing graffiti, and is performed by a character wearing a glowing animated mask. For ten points, name this League of Legends K-pop girl group featuring Kai’Sa, Evelynn, Ahri, and Akali that debuted in 2018 with the hit song “POP/STARS”.

ANSWER: K/DA

Tossdown 13

A Flash platformer game titled for William and one of these animals revolves around collecting fairyflies to reactivate runestones. In Redwall, one of these vermin animals changes his name and wears a blue-and-red harlequin mask after his face is deformed by a snake bite. In Grimm, Sean’s last name is French for one of these animals, and this is the animal Rosalee’s Wesen (“veh-sen”) form is based on. Icecloud is the sister of a cat named after this animal in the Warriors series. This is the only passive Minecraft mob that can naturally spawn already (*) holding an item. In the variant of a classic riddle mentioned in Fargo, a rabbit, a cabbage, and this animal must be transported across a river by a farmer. Redd from Animal Crossing and the protagonist of Tunic are both this type of animal. For ten points, name this animal who jumps for sour grapes in an Aesop fable and can’t stop swiping Dora’s shit in Dora the Explorer.

ANSWER: fox (Author’s note: For those who loved William and Sly as a kid, Lucas just released a third game on Steam in February 2024!)

Tossdown 14

A wedding planner and funeral director accidentally swap clients in an episode of this show titled “Dead Wedding”. After rubbing a lamp, a character in this show wishes for “Reese’s pieces for all mankind” instead of the “peace for all mankind” his father begs him to wish for. One recurring character in this show has a habit of listing groups of five that ends with “five children”, and he is obsessed with a certain type of soup. One of the more impressive athletic feats on this show involves a character who physically climbs onto people to act as their (*) shoulder angel and devil. A character from this show playing at a Texas hold ‘em poker tournament for a kidney transplant laments that he will have to get a monkey kidney after losing a bluff. The song “Kill The Whales Anthem” featured on this show was performed by Mates of State, who also wrote this show’s theme song “I Want To Run”. For ten points, name this sketch comedy show behind the Scott Sterling series that is produced by BYUtv.

ANSWER: Studio C

Tossdown 15

In this person’s collaborations with Cracking the Cryptic, he has given tips for Star Battle puzzles and written several Sudoku puzzles, one of which was featured in the video “World-Famous Youtuber Creates Genius Sudoku”. This YouTuber frequently uses the :1 (“colon 1”) emoji as a smile in video descriptions and comments. This YouTuber is a chess master, and is apparently extremely hot while playing chess blindfolded, according to the comments of a video where he played four blind simultaneous chess games against The (*) Try Guys. Unusual percussion instruments used by this YouTuber include his door keypad, which he used to play Megalovania, and an entire car, which he used in his cover of “Believer”. This YouTuber is known for filming covers entirely in one take, as seen in his cover of Maroon 5’s “Maps” and Anna Kendrick’s “Cups”, which featured his frequent collaborator Sam Tsui. For ten points, name this musician YouTuber who covered “Just A Dream” with Sam Tsui and Christina Grimmie.

ANSWER: Kurt Hugo Schneider [or KHS]

Tossdown 16

A repeated musical motif in this film begins with the notes [read slowly] G5, G5, B5, D6, B5, G5. The identity of a character in this film is foreshadowed by symbols in the corners of a series of numbered cards. The final scene of Terminator 2 is referenced in this film during a scene where an antagonist sinks into the ground after a map is destroyed. One character in this film cheerfully explains how he is still “it” in a hide-and-seek game that never ended after his family tried to drown him in a sock. This film was praised for its realistic portrayal of a (*) panic attack that leads to the protagonist confessing that he walked away from the altar on his wedding day at Santa Coloma. John Mulaney voiced a villain from this film who owns a thriving baked goods enterprise and a plum thumb. A popular and allegedly hot wolf character from this film whistles to signal his appearance; that character is Death, straight up. For ten points, name this 2022 DreamWorks Shrekverse film where the titular protagonist seeks to restore his nine lives using a fallen star.

ANSWER: Puss in Boots: The Last Wish [do not accept or prompt on “Puss in Boots”]

Tossdown 17

In 2021, I created a stickbug entirely made out of the orange measuring tapes that can be spawned during one of these activities. The codes 1550 and 1976 are used in these activities to access certain objects named after Girl Scout cookies. Different colours of paint can be used to tag “exotic” types of objects that display unknown behaviours in another one of these activities. The NOMR (“NOE-mur”) team develops some of these activities, including one that focuses on a green (*) particle named after the Thin Mint. RC systems are analyzed in the last two of these activities using linearization and uncertainty propagation. The first one of these activities uses a copper sphere and a Teflon rod that is rubbed with a wool cloth. Students are repeatedly reminded not to short a battery in one of these activities where they experimentally derive rules for adding resistance in series and parallel. For ten points, name these experimental parts of a certain introductory science class at UW that involve VR and focus on electromagnetic phenomena.

ANSWER: Physics 122 labs or Physics 118 labs [prompt on labs; prompt on introductory or 12x or 11x physics labs with “which specific physics class?”]

Tossdown 18

A girl from this series narrowly avoids being stabbed by giant scissors because another character bites himself to use his blood to distract the attacker. A pause-and-rewind sequence at the end of one of these videos shows a dying heart leaking rainbow-coloured streams before it is grabbed by a (*) green hand. A white-haired monster from this series tracks targets using flower petals, which are used by another character to repair his broken blue heart back to a glowing orange. The protagonists of this series were directly based on Scooby-Doo characters, except their dog is also secretly a kitsune. That kitsune bites off Arthur’s left arm after it becomes possessed and pushes Lewis off a cliff. For ten points, name this series of musical animations that feature characters bobbing to the beat of The Future, Hellbent, Freaking Out, and Ghost.

ANSWER: Mystery Skulls Animated [prompt on Mystery Skulls]

Tossdown 19

The message “Books are dangerous. Play more video games.” is shown at the end of a video by this duo where Cecil Adams suffocates after stealing a purse. In YouTube Rewind 2012, this duo plays the NASA JPL employees who cry over the destruction of the Curiosity rover. After trying to avoid a hot girl in a Ferrari saying “Shut up and kiss me already!”, one person from this duo ends up in a white void where he screams “I ALWAYS FORGET TO SAVE!”. A song by this duo shows one of them eating (*) barbecue ribs in a forest and saying, “What? A man’s gotta eat”; the chorus to that song ends with “tomahawk chop is my death blow”. In one sketch, one person from this duo attempts to poison their mom, who is also a recurring character, with a pink frosted sprinkled donut; that sketch was the 2010 edition of Food Battle. For ten points, name this sketch comedy duo who recently reclaimed their formerly most-subscribed YouTube channel, with real names Anthony Padilla and Ian Hecox.

ANSWER: SMOSH [or Anthony Padilla and Ian Hecox before mention]

Tossdown 20

The first one of these events took place on October 12th, 2023, and was about the singing head of Broken Thorn Sweet Blackberry. The schedule for these events includes comments like “Absurdist April”, and shows that the last planned one of these events will focus on a famous commencement speech about two fish. An upcoming guest at one of these events is the author of Homebase and American Knees. A conversation about the meaning of the work discussed at one of these events focused on its genre and the significance of a (*) green ribbon. The Ella nerd emoji first originated in this channel in the UW Quizbowl Discord. In contrast to what its titular acronym would have you believe, these meetings focus on Only Kinda Short Stuff. For ten points, name these meetings that take place after Thursday practices that discuss short works of literature that are NOT the titular type of written work.

ANSWER: BOOKSS Club

20 bonii

Bonus 1

Fuck, I just remembered it's an election year. For ten points each, name some things involving red and blue that are a lot more enjoyable to think about than American political parties:

[10m] A cardinal and ultramarine flycatcher are featured on the cover of this epistolary novel in which Red and Blue exchange secret messages that become very lesbian very fast.

ANSWER: This Is How You Lose The Time War

[10e] The animated show Red vs. Blue is created by this company who recently announced its shutdown in March 2024, leaving fans panicking over its plans for Volume 10 of RWBY.

ANSWER: Rooster Teeth Productions

[10h] In Pokémon Red and Blue, the glitch Pokémon MissingNo. ("missing no") is the only one to have a dual typing of Normal and this type.

ANSWER: Bird

Bonus 2

Inside Jimmy Wales there are two wolves. One of them is Wikipedia and one of them is Fandom. For ten points each:

[10e] Many Fandom migrations occurred in response to McDonalds paying Fandom to turn a page on the McDonalds Fandom wiki into a corporate promotion for this purple drink.

ANSWER: Grimace Shake

[10h] The Grimace Shake incident notably caused the Hollow Knight Wiki to migrate off of Fandom and onto this wiki host, the host of Zelda Wiki and Inkipedia.

ANSWER: ABXY

[10m] Congrats to Minecraft Wiki, which only recently escaped its abusive stint with Fandom! Before its parent company was bought out by Fandom, this wiki farm was the previous host of Minecraft Wiki.

ANSWER: Gamepedia

Bonus 3

I promised there would be no more questions about Rhythm Heaven in this packet. This question will instead be about Rhythm Hell. For ten points each:

[10m] Before it received a game adaptation, Rhythm Hell was originally an animation by Louie Zong in which this animal attempts to mimic increasingly cursed polyrhythms.

ANSWER: seal

[10h] An April Fool's followup to Rhythm Hell was this video, where a cow spins for a little over sixty-three rest measures before hitting a cowbell.

ANSWER: Rhythm Purgatory

[10e] A comment under Rhythm Purgatory describes it as just an excuse for Louie to show off a solo over this composition, which plays during the video. This famous jazz standard by John Coltrane is named for its wackily spaced chord progressions.

ANSWER: Giant Steps

Bonus 4

All the trans women in this club stole my gender, can't have shit in UW Quizbowl. For ten points each, answer some questions about some pretty cool genderless or non-binary characters:

[10m] I took the phrase “gender-agnostic” from this math YouTuber who lacks a gender identity altogether. This math YouTuber has a particular obsession with triangles and doodling in math class, and is well-known for their video on hexaflexagons.

ANSWER: Vihart [or Victoria Hart]

[10e] This extremely hot androgynous character from The Sandman is the twin of Despair, and in the Netflix adaptation they are played by the non-binary Mason Alexander Park.

ANSWER: Desire

[10h] This canonically genderless purple protagonist of a 1996 Sega Saturn game is able to merge with Elliot and Claris to fly through their dreams.

ANSWER: Nights

Bonus 5

Some people have an internal monologue. Sometimes, that internal monologue recites funny Internet memes against my will. Name some of them, for ten points each:

[10m] This cypypasta features an increasingly nonsensical sequence of events, including riding a bear into a Chuck-E-Cheese, being reincarnated as Jesus Christ, and turning into the Sun before the meth starts kicking in.

ANSWER: YOU, ME, GAS STATION

[10e] My thought process is often interrupted by the thought “why do they call it oven when you of in the cold food of out hot eat the food”, a phrase often associated with this Garfield character having a stroke.

ANSWER: Jon Arbuckle

[10h] I constantly think about the “Same Voice Actor” video where Scott Adsit’s character from Moral Orel yells “WHY DO YOU QUIT WORKING ON ME??” to a bottle of alcohol shortly before cutting to Adsit voicing this Disney character.

ANSWER: Baymax

Bonus 6

Amidst the burgeoning integration of artificial intelligence in scholarly publishing, we examine the implications and controversies surrounding the recent surge in AI-generated content in scientific papers—for ten points each:

[10e] An iconic figure from an AI-generated paper simply uses the label “Rat” to label a rat with very large ones of these things.

ANSWER: rat testes [or testicles or obvious equivalents; prompt on penis or equivalents with “yeah okay but what’s at the base and also mentioned in the caption”] [10m] As requested by UW Quizbowl, testicles can undergo torsion that causes them to twist internally. This class of molluscs can also undergo torsion that causes them to twist internally, bringing their anus above their head for reasons evolution cannot explain.

ANSWER: Gastropoda [or gastropods]

[10h] DNA can also undergo torsion that causes it to twist internally! One way to quantify the twisting of DNA is this numerical invariant from knot theory, the sum of twist and writhe.

ANSWER: linking number

(yes, this lead-in for this bonus was written by ChatGPT.)

Bonus 7

Ever since the disappearance of Hatsune Miku, she has appeared in a lot of really unexpected places. For ten points each:

[10e] The Vocaloid community was briefly excited about Miku becoming “MCU canon” after a Vocaloid song was featured in Volume 3 of this Marvel film series. Much of that film focuses on Rocket’s backstory prior to joining this group led by Star-Lord.

ANSWER: Guardians of the Galaxy

[10h] The unlikely Jerma-Miku dynamic led to Miku being featured in one of Corax’s “Jerma Animated” videos that mashes up the “happy birthday Miku” Jerma clip with a meme where Miku discovers one of these objects that is “so cool”.

ANSWER: pipe bomb

[10m] This ongoing major collaboration between Hatsune Miku and Pokèmon has introduced a Miku variant and song themed around each of the eighteen Pokèmon types.

ANSWER: Project VOLTAGE

Bonus 8

After testing if it blends, if it waffles, and if it tacos, there is only one thing left to check: will it run Doom? For ten points each:

[10m] In 2020, news articles incorrectly reported that a programmer managed to run Doom on the CPU of one of these devices. In reality, the CPU and screen of this device was replaced, and only the shell was used.

ANSWER: pregnancy test

[10e] The visual equivalent of Doom is arguably this Touhou song, whose shadow art animation has been recreated in everything from Minecraft sheep to actual carvings of the title fruit.

ANSWER: Bad Apple!!

[10h] Another highly recreated and parodied music video is “Lagtrain”, a song by this Vocaloid producer who also wrote “Lost Umbrella”.

ANSWER: inabakumori

Bonus 9

The submarine in Iron Lung may be a one-room windowless flimsy shell of scrap metal, but at least it wasn’t piloted by a modified Xbox controller partially designed by UW. For ten points each:

[10e] Much to its developer’s horror, Iron Lung spiked in popularity following the implosion of this Oceangate submersible in July 2023.

ANSWER: Titan submersible

[10m] The player briefly sees a liability form signed by GOD in this indie horror game. Smoking a cigarette restores a defibrillator charge in this game where you face off against the Dealer.

ANSWER: Buckshot Roulette

[10h] In this indie horror game, the player explores the world using a train mounted with a machine gun to collect three glowing eggs, which summon the title monster.

ANSWER: Choo-Choo Charles

Bonus 10

One of the more healthy non-Quizbowl obsessions shared by many members of UW Quizbowl is birding. For not quite ten points each, answer some questions about a particular bird-related location on campus.

[10e] Each floor of this biology building has a unique bird call associated with it, which plays when the elevator doors open on the corresponding floor.

ANSWER: Life Sciences Building [or LSB]

[10m] For five points per bird, identify all the LSB elevator birds. You have sixty seconds.

[10h] Reading the info plaque about the elevator tells you that “bird sounds on each floor reflect the vertical distribution of each species in the Leopold-Freeman Douglas fir forest”. Using this fact, or personal knowledge of LSB, match all birds to their corresponding floors. You have sixty seconds.

Bonus 11

If only I was a CS major making 100 dollars per hour at my Microsoft internship so I could spend all my disposable income on these stuffed animals. For ten points each:

[10h] The Pokèmon Company sent JaidenAnimations 174 Pokèmon from this stuffed animal line for her to review. These small stuffed animals are weighted with beads that allow them to stay upright, as their name suggests.

ANSWER: Sitting Cuties

[10e] Another stuffed animal line containing beads are these '90s toys featured in a famous photo where a divorced couple divides their collection of them on the courtroom floor.

ANSWER: Beanie Babies

[10m] FumoFumo plushies of Touhou characters are notoriously expensive, with this character's plush being particularly popular due to its appearance in memes. This tomboyish ice fairy is notable for being bad at math.

ANSWER: Cirno

Bonus 12

If I hadn't already spent all my disposable income on stuffed animals, a fact made clear to anyone who has seen my LSB desk, I would be spending them on these figures. For ten points each:

[10h] Many figures from anime or anime-adjacent franchises are produced by Good Smile Company, who makes these small chibi-style figures with large heads.

ANSWER: Nendoroids

[10e] These humanoid figures come in blind boxes and notably glow in the dark. These figures are likely more known to UW Quizbowl from a girl who left a suitcase with 2000 USD worth of these figures in the Madrona 4th floor lounge.

ANSWER: Smiskis

[10m] I actually really hate Funko Pops, so this last part will instead be about these figurines who contain NFC tags in their bases, which can be scanned on a GamePad or Joy-Con.

ANSWER: Amiibos

Bonus 13

Realism in video games often comes in the form of raytraced graphics, but it can also come in the form of realistic controls...uncomfortably realistic controls. For ten points each:

[10e] Prior to creating Getting Over It, Bennett Foddy's initial success was through this notorious Flash game in 2010, where the player uses the four keys in the title to control an athlete's calves and thighs.

ANSWER: QWOP

[10m] Like Qwop, this character's limbs are controlled independently, making normal chores and errands comically difficult. This character must hide his non-human identity from his very human family and avoid being exposed by Chef Fujimoto, who wants to cook him.

ANSWER: Octodad

[10h] This 2022 indie survival horror game was praised for its gun reloading mechanism that requires players to drag individual bullets into the chamber. Because the protagonist of this game loses an arm in the opening cutscene, the game must be played entirely with one hand as well.

ANSWER: Endoparasitic

Bonus 14

After UW Quizbowl, the best source of queer icons is, of course, IKEA. For ten points each—actually, maybe only five points if you really butcher the pronunciation:

[10e] This IKEA shark is a prominent trans icon. I had another clue here but I need this space to call out one of my playtesters for pronouncing it as "BLARJ". Where the fuck did the R come from dawg????

ANSWER: BLÅHAJ ([ˈbloːhaj], or approx. "BLOW-hye")

[10m] After the success of BLÅHAJ, many queer sub-communities have attempted to claim this comically large stuffed bear as their icon, but without a clear consensus, it has since just become an icon of the queer community as a whole.

ANSWER: DJUNGLESKOG (approx. "YOUNG-el-SKOOG")

[10h] For Pride in 2021, IKEA Canada released a series of "Love Seats" to mixed reception, with this particular item going viral for its really unhinged "nobody believes you" pillow.

ANSWER: bisexual couch [or bisexual sofa or equivalents]

Bonus 15

Now you're probably wondering what I'm going to need this lead-in for. To answer this bonus, we need to talk about parallel universes. For ten points each:

[10m] Pannenkoek2012's most famous video talks about traversing parallel universes and building up speed over 12 hours to obtain a star in Super Mario 64 using only this number of A presses.

ANSWER: half an A press

[10e] Pannen has offered a 1000 USD bounty for recreating an "upwarp" glitch in Super Mario 64 that may have been the result of one of these events causing a bit flip. A popular meme about that glitch captions a picture of this event with "this will affect my Mario 64 run".

ANSWER: cosmic ray (the rays create secondary particles that can hit computer chips)

[10h] Other crazy shit done by Mario fans include a Super Mario Bros. 3 TASBot run using code injection to colour in one of these creatures at AGDQ 2016. That was likely a reference to a 1993 NES children's game titled for colouring these creatures.

ANSWER: dinosaur

Bonus 16

I used to be an adventurer like you...then I discovered QB Reader. Answer some questions about people taking something to the knee, for ten points each:

[10e] To avoid killing his targets, this protagonist of Person of Interest often opts for shooting out their kneecaps instead with comedic frequency.

ANSWER: John Reese

[10h] Because "killing him will just wake him up", Mal shoots this character in the knee to get information out of Cobb in the opening scene of Inception.

ANSWER: Arthur

[10m] The voiceline "Say goodbye to your kneecaps, chucklehead!" is said by this character after a melee kill in Team Fortress 2. That voiceline is also said in response to the Spy saying "your mother!" in an SFM animation.

ANSWER: Scout

Bonus 17

Like many other 2010s teens, I often watched AMVs on YouTube just to feel something. For ten points each, answer some questions about iconic AMVs or similar videos.

[10h] The AMV "you can be king again" pairs scenes from this anime film to "King" by Lauren Aquilina. In this film, Hotaru befriends the forest spirit Gin, who will disappear if ever touched by a human.

ANSWER: Hotarubi no Mori e [accept English translations equivalent to Into the Forest of Fireflies' Light; there is no official English title]

[10m] This Disney mashup video created by Lindsay McCutcheon features incredibly creative lip-syncing and transitions to combine footage from twenty-three different Disney films, and is set to Madeon's "Pop Culture".

ANSWER: Fan.tasia

[10e] Many AMVs are set to this Thirty Seconds to Mars song, including a popular One Piece AMV that has since been copyrighted. This song addresses the title message to "the soldier, the civilian, the martyr, [and] the victim", among others.

ANSWER: "This Is War"

Bonus 18

In Valorant and similar FPS games, a non-lethal headshot is called a dink. Answer some questions about some people in real life who got dinked, for ten points each:

[10m] Particle physicist Anatoli Burgorski is best known for surviving a headshot from one of these beams after he stuck his head inside a particle accelerator.

ANSWER: proton beam

[10e] A classic case in neuroscience and psychology is this railroad worker who survived taking an iron bar to the head that destroyed most of his frontal lobe.

ANSWER: Phineas Gage

[10h] Although he eventually succumbed to his wounds, Leon Trotsky managed to survive for over a day after being stabbed by an ice axe in the head by this member of the NKVD.

ANSWER: Ramón Mercader

Bonus 19

POV: It's 2011 and you are a very easily entertained 9-year-old child (me) who enjoys watching the same four videos on the 3DS Nintendo Video app. Name some of them, for ten points each:

[10m] The app featured the music video for "Gang of Rhythm", a song by this Canadian indie group better known for their "5 People 1 Guitar" video and usage of weird instruments.

ANSWER: Walk Off The Earth

[10h] Also featured were the first four episodes of this Cartoon Hangover show that follows an unemployed girl and her companion as they take odd temp jobs on various planets.

ANSWER: Bee and Puppycat

[10e] Perhaps the most iconic staple of Nintendo Video was Dinosaur Office, a series of claymation shorts about dinosaur office workers produced by this company. This company recently rebranded to Dropout and was previously known for comedy videos like If Google Was a Guy.

ANSWER: CollegeHumor

Bonus 20

Since not all of UW Quizbowl is on the puzzling train yet, I'm using this as a free promotional space for the puzzling experience. The next three bonus parts, worth ten points each, will only be for people who have not done anything puzzle-related with us so far.

[10m] In puzzling, a common way to extract a letter from a phrase or word using a number is this method, which extracts the letter at the numbered position in the word, such as "QUIZBOWL, 1" yielding "Q".

ANSWER: indexing

[10e] Letters are often encoded into shaded grid squares in grid-based puzzles. One way to encode letters by shading is via binary, which uses this smallest unit of information with only two possible values.

ANSWER: bit

[10e] These algorithms are often used to encode and decode text in puzzling. Common examples include a1z26 (“A-one-Z-twenty-six”) and Caesar, which are considered “substitution” types of these things.

ANSWER: cipher

If you are a UWQB puzzler and felt left out, good news! This is actually a six-part bonus, and everyone is allowed to participate in the next three parts, although they are written for more experienced puzzlers in mind. For ten more points each:

[10m] Many puzzle hunts incorporate mechanics from established logic puzzles, such as this grid-based logic puzzle where the title objects must be placed in every region, row, and column of the grid, but cannot be adjacent to each other.

ANSWER: Star Battle [or Two Not Touch]

[10h] This is a cryptic bonus. (see slides)

[10h] Surprise! This is a meta bonus. You have one minute.

Discard Pile

Despite actively avoiding most VTuber content, I have to admit that some VTuber songs are major bangers. For ten points each, answer some questions about popular VTuber-related songs that I have listened to at least once.

[10m] This wildly popular song received over 700 entries in a cover and remix contest, and was featured in the album “Dead Beats”.

ANSWER: “Excuse My Rudeness, But Could You Please RIP?” [or “Shitsurei Shimasu ga RIP”]

[10e] One of the most popular VTuber songs, “Reflect”, is written by this currently most-subscribed to Vtuber, a small girl with sharp teeth who wears a shark-inspired outfit.

ANSWER: Gawr Gura

[10h] Like Gawr Gura, the blue hood of this other VTuber looks like a mouth, with teeth-like triangles lining the edge. This pink-haired VTuber is the voice provider of a similarly-named CeVIO voicebank, which was used as the singer of “phony”.

ANSWER: KAF [do not accept or prompt on “KAFU”]

People lose their minds over me using Musescore as a DAW (“daw”) to make music, but somehow using one of these arguably more janky tools is ok. For ten points each:

[10e] The instrument sound played by these Minecraft objects depends on the material they are placed upon.

ANSWER: note blocks

[10m] The music editor of this SNES game uses a single treble staff. Notes from different instruments use icons of characters and power-ups from its parent game series, as well as other objects like hearts and ships.

ANSWER: Mario Paint

[10h] This website uses sound clips from memes and games that can be pitch-adjusted and combined into a single sequence to create music. The website’s name is read out loud before the track is played.

ANSWER: Don't You Lecture Me With Your 30 Dollar Haircut (website link)

Tossdown 21

This number is in the title of a Waterparks song that repeatedly asks, "But then what? Would you get tired of my time?". A questionable 1907 experiment claimed to find that the human soul weighed this number of grams. This number is the only number to appear in the title of two Green Day songs. Because this packet was supposed to be somewhat academic, but I didn't want you math nerds to firstline it so I'm giving this clue late, this number is the 9th Fibonacci number as well as the sum of spots on a regular six-sided die. For ten points, name this number, the number of this tossup

ANSWER: twenty-one

Bonus 2

- google docs animals
- pov you are watching a warriors amv in 2012
- songs with unnecessary christmas versions : caramelldansen, duck song, the wellerman
- same voice actor, same bpm / same key
- nintendo 3ds video app: bee and puppycat / dinosaur office / walk off the earth
- fandom wiki
- music tracks that accompany famous web animations (crimson alpine, the guardian, a lullaby for gods) <- this could be a tossup with associated warrior cats bonus
- pipe bomb miku / mmd , sfm, minemator finish these common things on wikipedia this article is a stub?

better citation needed

replacing with sounds
the count censored
ANSWER: Vine boom sound effect metal pipe genre

bad apple TU

But will it run DOOM??

- lagtrain [m]
- doom [e]
- rush e?

SPD search for answer lines concluded. Suspects not found.

raymond from animal crossing

Bonus Bonuses

[10m] Initially revealing this character as aromantic asexual led to so much outrage from shippers that the creator, Vivziepop, later restated this demon's romantic attraction to unconfirmed as "not [to] spoil anyone's fun".

ANSWER: Alastor

A classic example of one of these structures involves (describe the cobblestone one with water)

- simple one of these consists of a 4-lane canal and a long dropshaft
- easiest to achieve in spawner blocks and often paired with grinders
- for ten points, name this constructs in minecraft that allow players to gather XP and large amounts of drops from their namesake entities

ANSWER: Minecraft mob farms

Tossdown 13

- fanfic AU
- r
- split the neural load second to lastline
- An 2023 adaptation ..

Two characters with this characteristic

In the UWQB Discord, the emoji of two brains being connected is named for this concept. For ten points, name this characteristic displayed between Mako Mori and Raleigh Becket that describes how well two brains sync with each other in Pacific Rim.

ANSWER: being drift compatible [or drift compatibility]

luck-based mario party minigames

discarded ideas:

chess bonus (holy hell lead in)

- en passant (e)

- hikaru nakamura (m) -> nvm this is just a TU now
- bongcloud opening (h)

metal gear revengeance songs/standing here i realize? tossup? bonus? idk

- it has to be this way -> merged into a diff bonus
- the only thing i know for real for ten points, name some questions about girl scouts

- since so many of you have taken the uw intro physics sequence, i'm sure you can name the minty particle
- i used to be part of the girl scouts back in 2010, but now i would say i'm not a girl, and i'm not a scout either since i prefer playing this other TF2 class
-

incremental game tossup

wacky uw physics tutorial things

- duck dielectric (clue duck life LOL)
- smiley face charge distribution
- relativistic soccer? (rocket league)

inscrption bonus

- You could be challenged, I guess, or start with this absurdly overpowered deck
- karnoffel code, or maybe OLD_DATA, i guess
- hitler

vocoded memes

One bonus isn't nearly enough for cursed musical mashups!

- TripleQ
- Giivasunner
- everybody's circulation

unregistered hypercam 2

gender bonus

- upload custom gender

- male female or this south american country (venezuela)
-

people taking selfies in wack situations bonus

- divorce selfie
- tornado selfie
- feeling cute, might delete later?
-

people who make unusual music on the internet

- tom cardy (hey i don't work here)
- bill wurtz
- bdg? or bill wurtz?

songs used in meme reaction

- wake me up inside
- unravel

whisliting TU -> whistling moths, puss in boots death? LOL

ANSWER: Spaghetti Western

prozd

-

egg

- trans_irl
- egg shortage, avian flu
- balut
- inscryption cuckoo

eggs in inscryption?

- cuckoo egg has a 20% chance to hatch into this flying card with a 2/3 statline
- curious egg
- easter eggs
 - hungry child or undead cat

Sushi Ramen Riku

Big Marvelmm

Pachebel's Chicken

ANSWER: rubber chicken

Tossdown 18

[7] hypixel bedwars

- bridging techniques
- dream mode
- rushing/sweats
- em gen?
- dragon endgame

ANSWER: Hypixel BedWars

[8] genshin, or maybe specifically on genshin leaks

For ten points, name

[9] Ado

- Artist on the Rise
- Ussewa

[11] amongus

[12] michael rosen reacts

[13] ultra beasts

- guzzlord screaming (“[this pokemon] is just a guy”)
- buzzwole clue

loss.jpg

history of japan

TwoSet Violin

- name minecraft update that allowed this
- kirito clue sorry

ANSWER: dual wielding

miraculous ladybug tu

mcdonalds bonus

- mcdonalds hat meme
- mcdonalds! mcdonalds! mcdonalds!
- szechuan sauce meme

In one music video for a song about these creatures, the singer gives an anatomy lesson about these creatures after witnessing another person trying to be friendly with one of them. In a song about moving away to a better place, the singer notes that the lack of these creatures in his new home is one of his (*) “favourite features”. In a song about being pursued by these creatures, the singer expresses disbelief that one of them is able to get to him even in outer space, but later takes revenge by killing many of these creatures. Another song also ends with killing these creatures after the attack of one of them leaves the singer with “half a heart left”. For ten points, what creature is “tryna steal all our stuff again”, an infamous exploding mob from Minecraft?

ANSWER: Creepers

songs that are featured in multiple rhythm games

- classic pursuit
- peer gynt
- rush E
- maybe just cysmix in general

This has been a great year for shitty Youtuber apology videos. For ten points each:

- linus tech tips
- colleen ballinger
- james somerton

Are you smarter than the average household pet? For ten points, answer some questions about animals completing video games:

betta fish completing pkmn sapphire ruby ftp name some facts about minecraft uncovered in the classified documents

Puzzling bonus

I may not be able to force all of UW Quizbowl to do puzzlehunts, but I sure can force you to puzzle your way through this bonus. The next three bonus parts, worth ten points each, will only be for people who have not done anything puzzle-related with us so far.

[10e, no puzzlers allowed] Ciphers and codes are commonly used within puzzling to encode answers, such as this flag-based communication system, where two flags are held at different angles to signal different letters and numbers.

ANSWER: flag semaphore

[10m, no puzzlers allowed]

This type of crossword clue often has nothing to do with the answer if read directly, but instead clues the answer in the form of a word puzzle that can require anagramming or modifying word structure. UWQB Puzzling is notoriously bad at parsing these types of clues.

ANSWER: cryptic crossword [or cryptic clue]

[10h, no puzzlers allowed] This classic Nikoli (“nee-ko-lee”) logic puzzle involves drawing a single non-intersecting closed loop through black and white circles on a grid. This puzzle is apparently very popular among puzzlehunt writers, which UWQB Puzzling found out the hard way.

ANSWER: Masyu [or Mashu]

Sorry if you are a UWQB puzzler and felt left out. Here’s some good news for you! This is actually a six-part bonus, with the next three parts aimed at experienced puzzlers, but of course non-puzzlers are welcome to attempt them also. For ten more points each:

[10e] Make this into a rebus?

This versatile pattern-matching word-searching website is frequently used in puzzling, and searches a Wikipedia-derived database of words and phrases given a set of constraints. This website is named after a drink dispenser from The Hitchhiker’s Guide to the Galaxy.

ANSWER: Nutrimatic

[10m] This is a cryptic bonus. You have thirty seconds:

Three-part tale of glory, but starts with sad title (5)

ANSWER: STORY (

[10??] Surprise! This is a meta bonus. You have 45 seconds:

SEMAPHORE (MAP, ORE)
CRYPTIC (CRYPT, TIC)
MASYU (AS)
NUTRIMATIC (TRIM, RIM, MAT, TIC)
QUIBBLE

ANSWER:
puzzling bonus - double bonus
for non puzzling people: caesar shift

CAESAR (2)
INDEXING (1)
MASYU (1)
NUTRIMATIC (2)
AMINO ACIDS (4)

REBUS

bicker about start of bible with the first two in a queue (7)

ANSWER: quibble (Bicker (definition) about (swap) start (first two letters) of bible (ibble) with the first (add to front) two in a queue (first two letters of queue) = quibble)

SEMAPHORE (SEMA, 4)
CODON (3)
BATTLE

SEMAPHORE -> SEMA (FOR) ->
CODON -> COD (ON) -> CODE (E)
BATTLE -> BLE (AT) -> BLUE (U)

CPSE (OR) -> COPSE (O)